

Is a vegetarian diet adequate?

Concepts and controversies in plant-based nutrition

4 June 2012
Volume 1 • Supplement 2

Future food

EDITORIAL

Changing our health and our world with plant-based eating

Protein matters

CLINICAL FOCUS

Plant protein — better for health?

Minerals in balance

CLINICAL FOCUS

Iron and zinc — should we be concerned?

Essential fats

CLINICAL FOCUS

Omega-3s from plants?

Vitamin B₁₂

CLINICAL FOCUS

When are supplements required?

Putting it together

CLINICAL FOCUS

Nutritional analysis of plant-based meal plans

EDUCATIONAL RESOURCE

Shopping, cooking and eating well

Contents

Editorial

- 5 A plant-based diet — good for us and for the planet
Rosemary A Stanton

Clinical focus

- 7 Protein and vegetarian diets
Kate A Marsh, Elizabeth A Munn,
Surinder K Baines
- 11 Iron and vegetarian diets
Angela V Saunders, Winston J Craig,
Surinder K Baines, Jennifer S Posen
- 17 Zinc and vegetarian diets
Angela V Saunders, Winston J Craig,
Surinder K Baines

- 22 Omega-3 polyunsaturated fatty acids and vegetarian diets
Angela V Saunders, Brenda C Davis,
Manohar L Garg

- 27 Vitamin B₁₂ and vegetarian diets
Carol L Zeuschner, Bevan D Hokin,
Kate A Marsh, Angela V Saunders,
Michelle A Reid, Melinda R Ramsay

- 33 Meeting the nutrient reference values on a vegetarian diet
Michelle A Reid, Kate A Marsh,
Carol L Zeuschner, Angela V Saunders
Surinder K Baines

Educational resource

- 41 Practical tips for preparing healthy and delicious plant-based meals
Sue Radd, Kate A Marsh

